

Let's look and discuss:

- What are obvious ways to show good leadership?
- What are obvious ways to show bad leadership?
- What things can potentially happen when we don't know what direction to go in or we can't see clearly?
- Looking at the picture of the geese, these are some of the things that could occur with them--danger, misreading the signs, or not knowing the next direction.

In order to be a Good Leader, you need to:

- Know who you are and what you stand for.
- Know who you are leading and where you are leading them.
- Know, trust, and believe in the CAUSE for which you are leading them.

Video and Discuss: Be a Good Leader – 10-15 Minutes

Who are you currently leading? (Whether you want to or not, you are leading someone, a younger brother or sister, a friend, a cousin, etc.) Someone is always watching you!

What are the top three things that matter the most to you?

Who are three people you listen to for life advice and why? What qualities do they have that make you want to follow (be influenced) by them?

Person #1 _____

Person #2 _____

Person #3 _____

Do you have a daily plan of direction for your life? If yes, what is it? If no, why not and what choices can you make today to change that?

Will you start to apply the 3 Knows to your life? Why or why not?

“Being a leader is more than doing nice things, and correcting people when they’re wrong. Being a leader may sometimes look like inconveniencing yourself for the convenience of others. Being a leader may sometimes look like sacrificing your own reputation to uphold certain morals and values. Being a leader doesn’t always look good. When people talk about being a leader, they often talk about the influence you have on other people. Sometimes that influence isn’t noticed right away.

Will you continue to walk as a leader when it seems like you have no influence?”
